

Careers with TACK

Our continued success relies on attracting and retaining highly skilled, driven and motivated people. There are a variety of career opportunities with TACK and we're always on the look out for talent – particularly in the sales arena.

Selling & Training at TACK

As a trainer 'walking the walk', particularly in the sales arena, means you'll quickly gain credibility with your delegates. And as a salesperson, the ability to demonstrate training material to your clients means you'll also quickly gain credibility, confidence and insight into their organisation, which will ultimately help you to win the business. We know this is a rare blend of skills and at TACK we expect the best, so if you have the drive, experience or potential to succeed in this challenging and exciting role then contact us.

Selling at TACK

As the first choice for organisations who want to grow their sales results and for sales professionals who want to develop their own effectiveness, members of the TACK sales team have a lot to live up to! If you think you have the raw material or can meet this challenge then please contact us. If you're successful, we'll help you to become the best there is in professional sales.

Training at TACK

Apart from being specialists in their field, a pre-requisite for all TACK trainers is enthusiasm, passion, creativity and energy – with these they bring to life each and every course they deliver. If you think you've got what it takes to join our internationally renowned trainer team then please get in touch.

Becoming a TACK partner

TACK operates around the world on a licence basis. We have partners in over 40 countries and we're always looking to expand our international reach. Becoming a TACK partner is a smart business move. You'll become part of the world's most comprehensive international sales training network and you'll be provided with a total support package to develop your TACK business along the way.

Why join TACK?

TACK is an award winning training provider. We've been an Investor in People for over ten years which demonstrates our commitment to the development of our people. We're also the only training company to have won a National Training Award – in fact we've been awarded two! So if you join TACK you know you'll be joining a winning team and you'll be rewarded competitively.
